Budapest Doctor Prepares For Nine Duels to Defend Marriage to Wealthy Girl

BUDAPEST, (P)—The Budapest court of honor ordered an overnight postponement late today of the first of Dr. Franz Sarga's nine duels, on the ground the elaborate formalities were incomplete.

BUDAPEST, (P)—"Me against nine" Sarga (as they call him now in Budapest), donned a derby and chesterfield and strode today from his modest flat to a gymnasium for a final, dress rehearsal of two days' wholesale dueling.

A mite of a man, but bouncing with energy, Dr. Franz Sarga was stopped every few yards en route to the gymnasium by duel-loving Hungarians. They told him to "be brave."

Tonight and tomorrow he's to fight nine opponents in defense of the honor of his blond wife and their unborn baby.

The 20-year-old wife, Magda, who knows all, recovered her composure. She bade Dr. Sarga Godspeed with the Hungarian equivalent of "give it to 'em, honey."

His 48-year-old mother, who is suffering a heart affliction, told him: "Call me up after it is over."

At the gymnasium, amid a great din of clattering foils, Sarga slipped out of his chesterfield and shirt to disclose a fencing costume underneath.

Grabbing a foil, he made a series of furious lunges at Fencing Master Santelli, who finally had to give way to the dashing midget.

Santelli removed his mask and congratulated the hero doctor warmly.

The ambitious challenger wolfed his last meal before the nine duels in company with the Associated Press correspondent. He ate a Bismarck herring and a hard roll, and drank light wine.

Dr. Sarga said he probably

FLORIST FROM LONG BEACH ARRESTED

Auto Accidents on Week End Fail to Equal Former Record

For the death of two persons in an auto crash at Huntington Beach, Nov. 16, 18-year-old Stephen W. Lucas, Long Beach florist, will stand trial on negligent homicide charges.

Arrested by Long Beach police, Lucas was jailed here Saturday afternoon on a warrant issued from Justice Chris Pann's court in Huntington Beach. Virgil Samuel Childers, 33, and Alta Mae Miller, 21, Los Angeles, died almost instantly after a crash in which Childers' car and Lucas' automobile were involved.

A third passenger in the Childers' car, George Robert Craco, 22, still is in St. Joseph's hospital in a serious condition.

In contrast to last week-end, which found three persons dead of traffic injuries, the holiday just past found no deaths and only one person seriously hurt.

Most seriously injured this week-end was Lewis Wood, 24, who is in St. Joseph's hospital with a possible fractured skull. He was struck by a passenger train as he walked along the railroad tracks in Orange early yesterday. His condition was reported very serious.

Ben Farrell, U. S. Forest service employee, sustained painful injuries early yesterday when his car left

Grand Jury Begins Probe Of Local Labor Troubles

MANY BURIED BY JUNEAU LANDSLIDE

Four Dead, Seven Hurt, About 25 Missing in Alaska Disaster

JUNEAU, Alaska, (P)—A huge landslide, rumbling down a mountainside, smashed through the apartment house section of Juneau leaving in its wake today four persons reported dead, at least seven injured, an undetermined number missing.

The slide last night demolished two apartment houses, a lodging house, a two-story concrete store and several homes.

It cut off power lines, plunging the city into darkness and disrupted telephone and U. S. Signal Corps Communications.

Throughout the night rescuers worked frantically in mud, rock and broken timbers to save persons whose muffled cries they heard through the debris.

Fire Chief W. W. Mulvihill said the number of trapped persons or bodies in the jumbled debris might be as high as 25.

The injured included: Alfred Bates, his side pierced by a board; Gust Erickson, crushed and injured internally; August Maki, a fractured ankle; Mrs. H. Lee, a fractured leg; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peterson and their two children, Gail and Allen, badly bruised and shocked.

Woman Under Piano
Loosened by heavy rains during the last few days, an earlier slide did slight damage. It was followed a few hours later by a torrent of earth 100 feet wide and ranging from 10 to 40 feet deep.

Efforts were centered on rescuing persons whose voices could be heard. Four were believed to be in one place. In another spot a woman apparently was under a piano.

LABOR DEBATES LEWIS CASE

TAMPA, Fla. (P)—The American Federation of Labor recommended today that the convention approve suspension of John L. Lewis' 10 rebel unions, but that efforts to bring them back into the A. F. of L. be continued.

If peace efforts are unsuccessful, the committee recommended, the federation's executive council be given power to call a special A. F. of L. convention to consider expulsion of the rebels. Debate started immediately.

SAN BERNARDINO, (P)—Officers today sought the parents of a day-old blue-eyed baby girl who died in the Colton hospital yesterday, several hours after she had been left on the steps of the institution.

The child, evidently of American parentage, was unclothed and wrapped only in an old blanket. Police were looking for a man who called the hospital and told attendants a "package" would be left on the step. Later, they said, he called again and asked if the baby had been found.

Britain Demands Japan Apologize

LONDON, (P)—Great Britain has demanded an apology from the Japanese government for the beating and torture of three British sailors at Keelung, Formosa, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed to the house of commons today.

STRIKE TEST AT ENSENADA

Attempt to Halt Liner Unloading Will Be Made by Unions

BULLETIN
SAN DIEGO, (P)—An attempt by Grace Line officials to break the blockade established by striking maritime unions failed today when Mexican vedettes at Ensenada, Lower California, refused to handle mail or baggage from the liner Santa Elena, anchored near 7 a. m. in Todos Santos bay.

SAN PEDRO, (P)—An attempt by the Grace express liner Santa Elena to dodge strike-bound Los Angeles harbor loomed as a test of international union labor strength today at Ensenada, Lower California port.

Instead of bringing 107 passengers and mail here, where 72 vessels lay idle, Grace Line planned to carry on the unloading off the Mexican town, about 150 miles to the south.

Blockade Planned
If unsuccessful, the Santa Elena was expected to proceed to a point off the breakerwater here and discharge mail, postal officials said.

A union spokesman said a contingent of maritime workers left by automobile for Ensenada yesterday bent on a blockade but lacking authorization of the central strike committee.

Mexicans Unions Help
The spokesman said Mexican union leaders, who have volunteered to boycott strike-affected American ships which attempt to use West coast ports, have flown from Mexico City to Ensenada to close the port to the Santa Elena.

"There is no possibility Grace Line will be able to obtain Mexican lighters or boats," asserted the spokesman, "and if the ship attempts to use her own lifeboats to send passengers or mail ashore, they will not be permitted to land."

Offers Reward for Diamond Ring

A valuable ring was missing from the finger of Mrs. A. F. Schultz, 722 Halladay street, today. Mrs. Schultz, who said she lost the ring on South Main street or at Main and Myrtle streets, offered a reward for its return, police reported.

VOTE BY U.S. HIGH COURT IS 4 TO 4

'Valid' Ruling by Lower Court on New York's Statute Affirmed

WASHINGTON, (P)—The New York unemployment insurance law, which taxes employers to pay benefits to those out of work, was held constitutional today by an evenly divided vote of the supreme court.

Announcement of the court was made in these words, after listing the title of three cases involving the act:

"The judgments in these cases are severally affirmed by an equally divided court."

Stone Not Present
Justice Stone, ill with dysentery, was not present today and did not participate in the decision. That made the vote 4 to 4.

How the justices were divided was not announced.

The New York court of appeals had upheld the insurance legislation. Fourteen states and the District of Columbia have similar laws. The states are Alabama, California, Idaho, Indiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Wisconsin and Utah.

What Law Provides
Under the New York measure, employers of four or more persons—with certain exceptions—are required to pay a tax on payrolls (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

LABOR FAVORS NEW NRA BILL

TAMPA, Fla. (P)—The American Federation of Labor went on record today in favor of the O'Mahoney industrial licensing bill, an NRA substitute.

The bill would compel all corporations to obtain a federal license and to conform to government-fixed wage and hour standards.

Introduced by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), the bill died in senate committee. William Green, A. F. of L. president, said it would be re-introduced.

New SRA Chief On Duty Today

Mrs. Catherine Hendley, formerly of Riverside, today assumed her duties as social service supervisor, acting head, of the SRA office of Orange county.

She replaces Terrence Halloran, former director, who was transferred a week ago to a position as field supervisor for Ventura, Santa Barbara, and San Luis Obispo counties. She also assumes most of the duties of Miss Dorothy Foote, case supervisor, who will take a social service supervisor post in Riverside county next week.

Mexican Business Leaders Installed

With 200 Orange county Mexicans as their guests, Mexican merchants of the county last night celebrated formation of a county Mexican Business Men's association with a dinner and dance at Gonzales hall here.

Officers installed last night were Arturo Madrid Loya, president; Sol Gonzales, vice president; Julian T. Lopez, treasurer; Lucas Lucio, secretary; Andres Hernandez, pro-secretary; and Jose Gallegos, Jesus Perez and Fermin Chavez, sergeants-at-arms.

GIRL BECOMES FIRE TORCH

Constance Hall Burned As Heater Ignites Her Clothing

A six-year-old Santa Ana girl, seriously burned early this morning, lay in St. Joseph's hospital today while physicians worked over her to ease her pain and bring about recovery.

Constance Hall, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hall, 2021 South Main street, became a human torch this morning when her dress caught fire while she was standing near a heater.

Screaming, the little girl began to run. Mrs. Hall ran to her and wrapped her in a rug, extinguishing the blaze on her clothing. One of the mother's hands was painfully burned in saving her daughter.

Ray Edwards, a neighbor, drove Constance and her mother to St. Joseph's hospital. The girl was burned on the back, sides and chest, but her face escaped the flames.

Her condition was pronounced serious.

CHINA FIGHTS INVASION

KWEISUI, Suiyuan Province, China, (P)—Suiyuan defenders, drawn up in border positions against a threatened invasion from Chahar province, were reported strengthened today by national government troops from Shansi.

Nanking's assistance, when completed, was to consist of 10 divisions of infantry and 50 airplanes.

Chinese sources reported. (The aid was confirmed by an official spokesman at the capital who said "the present policy is one of defense in which the Suiyuanese will hold the front lines with the moral and material support of Nanking. But in the event of an emergency, the central government's forces will enter into action without hesitation.")

Advices from Pailiangmiao declared Japanese fighting planes were circling over the northern Suiyuan frontier.

F.D.R.'s a 'Pollywog' Now

ABOARD THE U. S. S. CHESTER AT SEA. (P)—President Roosevelt, appointed "Senior Pollywog" aboard the cruiser Indianapolis, ordered a watch posted today for Davy Jones, royal agent of King Neptune.

The fictitious representative, who arranges initiations of travelers at their first crossing of the equator, was expected to arrive during the day to prepare facetious accusations against the neophytes.

Already the President has been charged with "gross incompetency in failing to carry Maine and Vermont" in the national election.

Death Takes Rail Magnate Of Cleveland

CLEVELAND, (P)—O. P. Van Sweringen, who with his brother, the late Mantis J., built a towering railroad empire out of a small real estate venture in Cleveland, died today of a heart attack aboard a Nickel Plate train en route to New York.

Death came about noon to the financier somewhere between Cleveland and New York. His brother died a year ago after a short illness.

Van Sweringen boarded the train of his railroad network here early last night for the trip to New York. He apparently had been in good health. At what point on the journey death overtook the noted financier, his offices here were unable to say immediately.

At its peak the railroad empire controlled by the two Van Sweringen brothers had 19,000 miles of track and assets of $2,000,000,000.

Inseparable since the days when they were newsboys near Wooster, Ohio, Oris P. was deeply affected by the death of his brother. They came to Cleveland as young men and started as office boys.

Their first venture in real estate here was not successful. However, they borrowed money to buy 2000 acres of land near Cleveland and built one of the most fashionable suburbs of the city, Shaker Heights.

Transportation facilities were needed to put their suburb in touch with Cleveland. The Van Sweringen brothers started in the railroad business by buying a small rapid transit line.

U. S. EMBASSY WILL CLOSE

Madrid Staff Ordered by Washington to Go To Valencia

WASHINGTON, (P)—The state department today instructed American Charge d'Affaires Eric C. Wendelin to close the American embassy at Madrid and proceed to Valencia for safety.

By trans-Atlantic telephone, Wendelin informed the department that he and his staff probably would evacuate the embassy Wednesday, taking with them most of the approximately 200 American citizens still in Madrid.

The embassy staff, including Wendelin and the military attaché, numbers six.

The Madrid government fled to Valencia several weeks ago.

BRITAIN MOVES TO PROTECT HER SHIPS

(By the Associated Press)
Britain promised today her warships would protect her merchant vessels on the high seas from "either side" in the Spanish war, and moved simultaneously to make illegal the carrying of Spanish arms by British merchantmen from whatever port.

While new bombs and shells from Fascist besiegers fell in mid-Madrid, Spanish Socialist sources hinted at grave international repercussions from the alleged torpedoing "by foreign submarines" of government cruiser.

Official British sources indicated today the mysterious explosions which disabled the Spanish cruiser Miguel de Cervantes off Tartagena Sunday night might have been internal. The intimidation gave a new turn to the incident, which the Spanish government has blamed on "foreign" submarines.

Germany May Break
Unconfirmed reports circulated in London diplomatic circles today that Germany might be considering breaking off relations with Moscow so the Nazis could assume a free hand in Spain. The reports followed hard on the heels of a 45-minute conference between Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to Great Britain, and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin on an undisclosed subject.

Insurgent air raiders bombed the heart of Madrid, dropping several bombs on the ministry of war as the defense junta laid plans to evacuate between 300,000 and 450,000 persons to a haven to the east.

Townsend Radio Man Fights Ouster

LOS ANGELES, (P)—Flanked by two private detectives, Howard Ray held the fort today, refusing to leave his position as national radio director for the Townsend pension organization.

Ray was notified of his discharge in a telegram from Dr. Francis E. Townsend at Chicago. Paul Lichtenfels was named to succeed him. Ray said he would not vacate his post at radio headquarters until he was given reasons for his dismissal.

Seattle Mayor's Ouster Is Sought

SEATTLE, (P)—The Citizens recall committee today filed a petition with the city comptroller asking removal of Mayor John F. Dore for alleged malfeasance and numerous reputed violations of his oath of office.

Four Dead, Nine Injured in Crash

DEMING, N. M. (P)—A woman and three children were dead and nine other persons lay injured, five seriously, here today after a heavily loaded gasoline truck and trailer swerving to avoid three stalled automobiles involved in a traffic mishap crashed into the tourists grouped near the scene.

The dead were Mrs. M. M. Darnell, Prescott, Ark., her son, Jobie, 14, and daughter, Margery, 9, and John Allen Tasley, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tasley of Fort Worth, Tex.

STORMBRINGS SHOWERS AND LIGHTNING

Light Rain Is General In Orange County Over Week-end

A dark-browed gent named Jude Pluvius, aided and abetted by a husky northeast wind, spoiled Sunday trips for many Orange county residents, as scattered showers, much lightning, thunder and blasts of wind offered a week-end of unsettled weather.

Very light rainfall was recorded throughout the county, although a heavy fall was reported in Imperial and San Diego counties and a light mantle of snow topped the higher mountains. Santa Ana received but .06 inches during the storm, bringing the season's total to 1.07 inches, as compared to 1.10 inches at the same time last year.

No damage was reported from a brilliant display of lightning Saturday evening. A gusty wind broke branches from a few trees, but did little harm, it was reported.

The showers were greeted throughout the county. The Orange district recorded the heaviest fall, with .10 inches. San Juan Capistrano and Newport Beach reported only a trace of moisture.

Continued cloudy weather, with showers in the mountains, was forecast by government weather observers for tonight and tomorrow.

Traffic Injury Claim Settled

Disputed damage claims of Marjorie Dryden, 18, of Buena Park, and Dick Frazee, 20, against E. R. McCoy and the McCoy Motor company as the result of a recent traffic crash were compromised by a superior court order obtained today.

Miss Dryden's claim was settled for $129, and Frazee's for $120, $20 of which was to be paid Dr. Danforth C. Cowles, Fullerton, for professional services.

would fight the duels in his horn-rimmed spectacles, which probably are the most repaired pair of glasses in Hungary. They have been shattered frequently in 17 previous duels.

The jugular veins of the contestants will be covered only with a light cloth about their necks. Sarga is the smallest of the duellists, but his hairy shoulders are the broadest of the 10.

Tonight's first duel will be the toughest, Dr. Sarga, opined, and the two following it should be easy "because I'll be warmed up."

All in 48 Hours

Budapest buzzed with speculation over whether Chief of Police Tibor Ferenczy would stop the duels. Generally, it thought not, because Chief Tibor loves the sound of clashing foils himself.

Under the duellists' code, Sarga must meet all his adversaries within 48 hours after his first combat, with a heavy military saber.

Dr. Sarga challenged nine men who intimidated him for money. "I have been entreated to relinquish the idea of nine combats," Dr. Sarga said. "But I have never entertained any such plea because honor, more priceless than life, is at stake—the honor of my wife and the baby we'll soon have."

Keeps Site Secret

"I would not want my child to learn his father was a coward," As the hour approached for the first meeting—tentatively set for after midnight at a secret rendezvous in a fencing academy—detectives lolled outside the Sarga home.

Dr. Sarga refused to confide the location of the field of honor even to his seconds lest it become known to the police. Besides the adversaries, there will be two seconds and a doctor for each.

A neutral known as the "leading second" will officiate, keeping the duellists from coming too close to each other and guarding against fouls.

Dr. Sarga Broke

Because the code dictates the insult can be wiped out only by blood, each duel must continue until one opponent is too exhausted to fight or is wounded.

Dr. Sarga is broke and jobless. No money was forthcoming from Mrs. Sarga's grandfather, a bank official and multi-millionaire whose fortune she may inherit some day. Mrs. Sarga's family objected to the marriage.

Dr. Sarga, son of a civil servant, said he hopes to write his memoirs after the duels and intimidate their major theme would be the relations between the Sargas and Mrs. Sarga's grandparents.

Townsend News, Views

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This is a non-political, non-partisan column, dealing in Townsend news and views, and written by a prominent Townsend leader. Any opinions which are expressed here are not necessarily those of the Journal.)

Santa Ana club No. 2 holds its regular monthly meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Townsend hall at 509 West Fourth street.

The writer has been asked to address the gathering. He will use as his subject, "What Is the Future of the Townsend Movement, Will It Live or Will It Die?" This club in last week's meeting voted to put on a drive for new members.

The active membership of the club is being divided into two divisions with P. R. Long of 906 West First street as captain of one side, and M. H. Beard, 806 West Third, as the other side's captain. The contest will continue for some time. At the end of the contest the side getting the smallest number of new members has to furnish dinner to the winners. E. F. Millard, president, will preside over tonight's meeting. Fred Becker, now of 928 West Pine street, recently transferred his membership from the Anaheim club to this club.

Santa Ana club No. 10 will not meet tonight. They are joining with Club No. 8 in a meeting tomorrow night. Santa Ana club No. 12, which meets in the Diamond school community building in Santa Ana, will hold a meeting at 7:30 tonight. Their speaker will be former district organizer J. H. Walsh. The Rev. Eli Walker is the presiding officer of this club.

Tustin Townsend club is having a social time at their meeting at 7:30 this evening. John Sauters, president, will preside. The social hall of the Presbyterian church will be the meeting place. Rachel M. Cate, N. publicity chairman, gives out the information that refreshments will be served and that the public is welcome. She also states that Harry C. Westover, state senator-elect, will address the group. This club's advisory board members met to consider future work of the club at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. May W. Borum at 299 South A street. Mrs. Borum has long been an energetic worker in behalf of the Townsend plan.

Orange club No. 1 has arranged for a rousing meeting at 7 o'clock tonight. The meeting place will be Townsend hall at 149 South Glassell street. President J. A. Green will preside. The Rev. Joe Nation, Baptist minister of Long Beach, has been secured to deliver the address. The Rev. Mr. Nation was endorsed by the Townsends of the eighteenth district for nomination on the Democratic ticket in the August primaries but failed of being nominated. He is a speaker who is always possessed of a tremendous fire of enthusiasm.

The Garden Grove club is another organization which always meets at 7:30 o'clock on Monday night. Tonight the meeting will be held in the Woman's Civic clubhouse. Dewey S. Hubbard, president, will preside. This club is an energetic go-getting type of organization. They maintain a constant interest through varied programs, frequently presenting well-informed speakers. Last Monday night Harry C. Westover, state senator-elect, brought their message. Westover demonstrates his interest in the Townsend movement as being more than that of a candidate seeking election.

The Anaheim Townsend club is the biggest in the county. The recent merging of the former clubs of that city gives it an aggregate membership of over 1,900 members. It also has Monday night as a meeting night. The members of this club maintain a well-equipped Townsend club building at 210 South Clemente street, where the club will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Ida Freeman is its president. Harry D. Riley, the new supervisor-elect from the third district, is the vice president. You will be cordially welcomed if you attend this club tonight. This club is sponsoring a dance at 8 o'clock next Wednesday night in Anaheim. K. P. Modern and old time dance music will be featured during the evening. Bridge and other card games also will be played.

Here's a Townsend club meeting which every Santa Ana Townsendite should plan on attending. It will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the Lincoln school building in the 1400 block on French street. Santa Ana clubs Nos. 8 and 10 are sponsoring it. J. A. Holmberg of club No. 10 is in charge of securing speakers and W. J. Pickering, president of No. 8, has arranged for the entertainment. The Hurd-Lentz orchestra will pep the gathering up with one of its splendid concerts. The speaker is R. Z. (Bob) Adams of Los Angeles. He comes well recommended as being possessed of both analytical and humorous abilities. It is his first appearance before Santa Ana Townsends and the writer predicts a good audience to hear him.

GUIDE TO MEET

Service guild of the Episcopal Church of the Messiah will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. John Lacey Taylor, 416 East Chestnut street.

DOWDS LOSES IN LAND SUIT

Suit filed more than a year and a half ago by C. G. Dowds, Santa Ana real estate dealer, in an attempt to collect a disputed commission of $13,000, and damages of $15,000, ended in failure today.

The district court of appeals upheld a decision by Superior Judge James L. Allen on July 12, 1935, in favor of the defendants in Dowds' action.

Dowds had sued Mr. and Mrs. William W. Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Cood Adams, of Tustin. He claimed that on May 13, 1933, he had purchased an option on Armstrong's Tustin ranch, the sale price to be $65,000, and that on the same day he entered into an agreement to sell the property to Adams, together with a parcel of Newport property.

Armstrong failed to deliver title, he claimed. He accused both Adams and Armstrong of fraud in conspiring to avoid payment of his commission, after having entered into a contract.

Judge Allen upheld demurrers of both defendants, on the ground that the complaints were outlawed by civil code in some instances, and that Dowds had altered the original contracts without consent of knowledge of the defendants.

The defendants were represented by Attorneys L. A. West and R. Y. Williams of Santa Ana in the action, which was started here on June 19, 1935.

County May Hire Two Attorneys On Water Program

Orange county may hire two attorneys for condemnation proceedings in connection with the county's $13,000,000 flood control program.

The board Saturday met with City Attorney Albert Launer of Fullerton after his name had been placed in nomination for the job per diem compensation of $30 was suggested by Launer as proper for the work to be done.

Before any action could be taken Supervisor N. E. West suggested that two attorneys be selected, as a safeguard. He nominated B. Z. McKinney, recently appointed city attorney of San Clemente, as the second member of the county's extra legal advisors.

Launer was asked to contact McKinney and talk over the situation with him, with special regard to possible remuneration.

The lawyers will meet again with the board tomorrow morning to attempt to reach an agreement.

Play Stressed as Tourist Lure

Recreation and play as the sources of new residents and new income for California were stressed last week-end more than ever before at the meeting of the State Chamber of Commerce, Howard I. Wood, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, said today.

Chambers of Commerce in Orange county are pushing the development and exploitation of recreational facilities here as a means of attracting desirable new families.

Santa Clara county has adopted a tourist information service similar to one proposed for Orange county, he found. Small booklets, maps suggesting scenic or historical drives are distributed to tourists through service stations which act as branches of the Chamber of Commerce.

Irene Dunn Sued In Court Here

Irene Dunn found herself on the wrong end of a suit for damages in Orange county's superior court today.

But it was not the movies' Irene Dunn. It was Irene G. Dunn of Midway City, who was sued with the Security First National bank and six "John Does" for foreclosure of a trust deed of $1955.47 on Midway City property.

farce!" He claimed justice was being obstructed, and said he would demand a complete investigation by the jury.

MORE ABOUT WAGE LAW

which is to be placed in a pool to aid the unemployed.

While the legislation was supplementary to some extent to the federal social security act, the latter statute was not involved in the litigation decided today.

The New York tax for 1936 was 1 per cent, 2 per cent for 1937, and three per cent thereafter. The fund is now in excess of $20,000,000, paid by more than 76,000 establishments for 2,500,000 workers.

Benefits Begin in 1938

Benefits, not to be paid until 1938, are based on the legislation on 50 per cent of the full time weekly wage, with a minimum of $5 a week and a maximum of $15 to qualified unemployed workers.

Benefits could continue only for a maximum of 16 weeks a year. The money is to be paid into the federal treasury and returned as requisitioned by the states.

Under the federal measure, a tax is assessed against employers but 90 per cent of the amount is to be returned in states which had adopted unemployment insurance plans approved by the federal social security board.

Critics' Content

Constitutionality of the New York act was challenged by the Associated Industries of New York State, Inc., and by Syracuse firms, E. C. Stearns & Co., and W. H. Vamberlin, Inc.

Their attorneys, which included Frederick H. Wood of New York, contended the act was unconstitutional because it took property from one class for the benefit of another class and thus deprived employers of property "without due process of law."

Henry Epstein, New York solicitor general, told the supreme court that it was the duty of a state to enact legislation to care for its unemployed.

He said that "states are the scientific laboratories out of which must come the prescriptions which will cure, prevent or palliate industrial evils."

First Ruling 5-2

Epstein's contention that the legislation would tend to reduce unemployment was disputed by his opponents with the assertion that it actually would increase the number out of work.

In a five-to-two decision, the New York court of appeals said it could see nothing unreasonable or unconstitutional in the legislative act which seems to meet the evils and dangers of unemployment in the future by raising a fund through taxation of employers generally.

"It would be a strange sort of government, in fact not government at all, which would not give help in such trouble."

Susan McConal Dies on Sunday

Susan Belle McConal, wife of Jacob McConal of 811 West Third street, died yesterday at her home after an illness of several weeks.

She had lived in Santa Ana for 23 years and was a prominent member of the Daughters of Union Veterans and of the Women's Relief corps. These organizations will assist at the burial rites at Fairhaven cemetery tomorrow afternoon at 10 a. m. at the Winbiger mortuary, with the Rev. C. M. Aker officiating.

She is survived also by a son, Arthur McConal, of Santa Ana; two daughters, Mrs. W. E. McCure of Santa Ana and Mrs. Arthur Fullman of Walnut Park; three sisters, Mrs. N. Anderson of Venice, and Mrs. C. B. Workman of Woodard, Okla.; a brother, Sherman Watson of Olathe, Kan., and a niece, Mrs. Pearl Campbell of Santa Monica.

Fay Webb's Aunt Dies at Funeral

SANTA MONICA, (AP)—Captain Clarence E. Webb left his police duties to attend the funeral today of another relative.

His sister, Miss Winifred Webb, 60, died last Saturday as she was walking past the bier of Webb's daughter, Fay Webb, former wife of Rudy Valley, singer.

The Rev. Frank G. H. Stevens, who conducted services for Fay and Webb's wife who died six months ago, officiated.

Miss Winifred Webb collapsed in the arms of her brother during funeral services for her niece. Death was due to a heart attack.

Escaped Convict Shot by Guard

SAN QUENTIN, (AP)—Fog failed to save Harry Smith, one-time minor Chicago gangster, from the aim of a San Quentin prison guard after an attempted escape.

The guard, W. P. Geddes, left a party yesterday celebrating his fifty-eighth birthday, to join in the hunt for Smith. He peered through the fog, spotted Smith in a clump of bushes and, after the convict ignored repeated commands to halt, pulled the trigger of his gun.

CONVICTION OF PETERKIN WILL UNDER ATTACK

PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—The state supreme court upheld today the conviction of Joseph J. Bruno and five of his kinsmen in the Kelayres election eve "massacre" of November, 1934.

Bruno and his brother Philip; James and Alfred Bruno, sons of Joseph; Arthur Bruno, son of Philip; and Anthony Orlando, nephew of Joseph and Philip, were sentenced to prison in the deaths of five men. Joseph and Philip Bruno received life sentences; the others lesser terms.

A hail of bullets which cut into the ranks of a Democratic parade in the little mining town of Kelayres on Nov. 4, 1934, the night before election, resulted in the arrest of Joseph Bruno and his kinsmen, long Republican leaders in the Schuylkill county community.

Many of the townspeople had bolted the Republican ranks and rallied to the cause of George H. Earle, then running for governor, and others on the Democratic ticket. As the marchers reached the street in front of the Bruno home, they were met by a fusillade of shotgun and rifle fire. Five men fell, mortally wounded, and at least 12 others were struck down.

Protest County's Refusal to Aid Strike Families

A protest against the county welfare department policy of refusing aid to families of jailed strikers who refuse the alternative sentence of deportation to Mexico was sent to the board of supervisors today by the Forum club of the Santa Ana First Congregational church.

At the same time, W. Maxwell Burke, leader of the class, made public a letter he has written to Mrs. Esther McC. Hutson, director of the social service division of SRA at San Francisco, asking release of an SRA survey of the condition of the strikers' families.

Last week the board of supervisors directed Byron V. Curry, county welfare director, to maintain his stand that the strikers' families are not to be given aid if the strikers refuse to return to Mexico.

Mission Burglar Leaves Clue on Aged Vestments

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Fingerprints of a 60-year-old religious vestment gave police a clew here today in a burglary of the historic Mission Dolores.

The vestment, nearly 400 years older than the United States, was pushed aside by the burglar, who mission fathers said broke four "irreplaceable" glass windows and took valuable candleabra and a small sun from the poor box.

Police took bloodstained fingerprints from the broken windows and the vestment in their efforts to apprehend the burglar. The bloodstains, officers said, indicated the burglar had cut his hand in breaking the windows.

Attorney Slain In His Offices

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP)—P. B. Mayfield, Cleveland attorney, was shot to death in his office here today.

Officers arrested Dr. Vance Bell, former county physician and charged him with the shooting. Mayfield was vice president of the Bank of Cleveland.

Fire Damages German Vessel

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, (AP)—The Hamburg-American freighter Saarland, carrying 21 passengers, put in at San Juan today after fire had swept her cabins and destroyed her wireless equipment. The amount of damage was not estimated. There was no loss of life.

Leaving a note saying he "intended to see some of the country," 16-year-old Howard Whitney left his home in Costa Mesa shortly after 10 p. m. Saturday, and was believed to be on the way to see friends in Atascadero or relatives in Yuipala.

With him was believed to be a friend, Leo Hoenshall, Jr., 15, of 937 West Myrtle street, Santa Ana, who disappeared at about the same time, his parents reported.

Turkey Theft Is Reported Today

When people start missing big fat turkeys it's a sure sign Thanksgiving's just around the corner.

Two reports about turkey thieves gave Santa Ana police that idea anyway. Ten 15-pound birds were missing from the E. Barker pens at 830 East Chestnut street, and officers were looking for a small red truck and trailer noticed near the scene last night.

Bernstein Brothers, 1613 West Sixth street, reported thieves had attempted to get into the poultry department there and had pried a board off the roof, only to be frightened away.

JUDGE THOMAS DIES TODAY

Judge W. H. Thomas, 68, of Santa Ana, died this morning after an illness of several years.

Coming to Orange county 27 years ago from his home in Carnarvon, Wales, he was appointed judge of the superior court by Senator Hiram Johnson, which position he kept for two terms. Later he was elected judge of the court of appeals, which took in most of Southern California at that time.

He was an outstanding Prohibition leader and political figure, and was a well-known public speaker, as well as a dignitary of the Masonic lodge at one time.

At the expiration of his term of office, he practiced law in Los Angeles, maintaining his home at 1112 West Chestnut street in Santa Ana. He was forced to retire from business approximately four years ago, and never recovered his health.

He is survived by his wife, Mae Josephine Thomas, and five children, Mrs. A. H. Schlack of Inglewood, Perry Thomas of Santa Ana, Mrs. R. L. Smith of Anaheim, James Thomas of Santa Ana, and Edgar Thomas of San Diego.

SHIPPING OF BEST FRUIT IS URGED

Exchange Warns Oranges Must Compete With Florida Output

With Florida pushing its greatest orange and grapefruit crop in history in the eastern markets through an aggressive advertising campaign, California citrus growers must be careful to ship only mature fruit of good quality, the California Fruit Growers exchange warned in the California Citograph which appeared here today.

Navel season is starting with a very satisfactory Valencia season out of the way, the exchange reported. Shipments were at a minimum the first week of November, with the Valencia being cleaned up.

Prices for October held up well, but declined toward the end as Florida fruit found its way to market.

In appearance, Florida oranges are competing with California oranges more successfully than before, according to the report. Florida is using vegetable colors to enhance the appearance of the fruit, but the California product so far is farther advanced in appearance and better for juice, reported the exchange.

To meet the problem of marketing a continuous oversupply of lemons, the exchange has authorized a $100,000 advertising campaign for the central sales division around Chicago, starting Dec. 1 and continuing through May.

It will stress fresh lemon juice, soda, and water as a mild laxative and tonic during the months of low lemon consumption.

THORN
FLESH
By GLENN L. THORNE

Since when is it a disgrace to play football and not win? Do we play merely to win?

That question has been worrying my weak mind ever since a local "nut" (short for kernel) put our local high school football team over the edge in an effort to burn somebody up, with the question "Why not give up for the rest of the entire season?"

Now I never played a game of football in my life. But I have attended games where the team I was pulling for lost, and it was a good game. During my pre-college days "our" team never won a game for two long seasons. Were the coach and team taken out and "murdered"? No! They weren't even put over a barrel. They played the game like men and everyone supported them like men. They came up the following years with winning teams.

After all, it's part of the game to be taught how to accept defeat and still play the game. To that person, a win means much more.

In life we lose our daily games as often as we win. I feel sorry for any young person who has never tasted defeat when he goes out to tackle the problems of life and plays against unmountable odds.

Let's off to a team that continues to "play the game" even though outclassed at times!

Meet Your Neighbor

The Journal's compilation of Orange County People You Should Know.

Name: Edward M. Nealley.

Occupation: Teacher in Santa Ana Junior college.

Home address: Santa Ana, RD 1, Box 504.

When and where were you born? Oct. 17, on a 76-acre farm, facing the grand old Mississippi river, near Burlington, Ia.

What is your hobby? Trying to "unscure the inscrutable" in philosophy, and picturing it on charts.

What is the hardest task you ever encountered? In my early years on the farm it was breaking in a fractious colt. The colt nearly broke me. In later years it was keeping on good terms with a finicky stonemason. That was the reason I came to California.

What career offers the greatest opportunity to young men and women? I thought I knew up to recent years, but just at present I don't know.

What bit of news has interested you most recently? That the candidate for president I voted for got there.

If you were editor of The Journal what one change would you make in the paper? I would take a more definite stand on some of the vital issues that confront us today, especially local.

What do you like best in The Journal? I don't know that I can specify any single feature. It is a good paper.

What one thing would help Santa Ana most? Get rid of the saloons, I am a rabid old-time prohibitionist, and my students know it.

What in your judgment is the most important problem facing the world today? Why? The problem of eugenics—in the words of Dr. Alexis Carrell in his "Man, the Unknown" it is "breeding better brains." The biologists are telling us that most inferior one-fourth of the present generation are breeding one-half of the next generation. Spengler may be right in his predictions!

COUNTY LEADERS TO LAUNCH ATTACK ON WATER PROBLEM TONIGHT

GATHERING OF 100 TO MEET AT ORANGE

Will Select Committee of 50 to Survey Present and Future Needs

Preparing to dig deeply into all the phases of the Orange county water problem, more than 100 water-minded men are to meet at the Intermediate school, Orange, at 7:30 tonight.

From the group will be selected a county-wide committee of 50 to look into Metropolitan Water district, flood control, the amount of water needed for the county, the available supply here and outside, and other phases.

Associated Chambers of Commerce and the Orange County Coast association launched the movement for such a committee six weeks ago by appointing Willis H. Warner and a committee to assemble the larger group.

Invite Others
With Warner were Ted Craig, D. S. Smiley, John W. Crill, Ross Shafer and D. J. Dodge. They have invited each of the cities not now in MWD, each of the water companies and associations, and other groups and individuals interested in water to be represented.

"If any property owner or water company interested in the problem has not received an invitation, I want them to understand they are invited," Warner said today.

It will be the first time a county group has undertaken to get a complete picture of the water needs and situation. Among the things the committee hopes to accomplish are:

1. Find the total and probable future total water need of the county.
2. Determine which parts of the county need water most, and how much they need.
3. Find what amount of water is available inside the county in present and undeveloped sources.
4. Determine the supply and possible cost of water from outside sources.
5. Obtain a thorough understanding of the burdens and obligations of membership in Metropolitan Water district in case all or a portion of the county agricultural area should join.

No Propaganda
"The general committee has a special duty in view of the fact that directors of the Metropolitan Water district have proposed membership in that district for all or parts of Orange county," Warner said in his invitation to water interests.

"The committee of five is in no way concerned with propagandizing for or against the MWD and hopes that an impartial county-

HUGE JOB INCREASE

WASHINGTON (AP).—Secretary Perkins announced that 220,000 workers were returned to employment in combined manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries between the middle of September and the middle of October. Aggregate weekly payrolls in October, she said, were $16,300,000 greater than in the preceding month.

IMMIGRATION WORK OPENS UP JOBS

Alien Deportation From This County Leaves Work for Others

Approximately 150 jobs for persons who are legal residents of the United States and who have a right to the work, have been opened up in Orange county so far this year through the activities of the United States Immigration Service, it was announced today by Franklin Davis, chief of the Orange county division.

More than a dozen persons are deported every month from Orange county, Davis said, and the service feels that for every alien who is sent back to his native country, a job is opened up for another person who has a right to be here.

While a large percentage of those deported are Mexicans, not all are. Davis said that during the past month four Canadians, two of them well known in this county, were deported. Because of the confidential nature of the work and because of governmental regulations, the names of the persons deported are not made public.

Davis said that before the current month is over he will have secured warrants for the arrest of 29 other persons, who will be charged with illegal residence in the United States.

Persons who are in this country illegally are discovered in various ways. A considerable percentage of them are brought to the attention of immigration authorities here through anonymous letters, sent by enemies of the aliens or persons who think it proper to report such illegal residents to the government. Others are discovered when they get into trouble and land in jail and others through routine investigations.

Six members of the border patrol are stationed at San Clemente, and these officers work closely with the immigration service.

DRESSER WINS AIR MEET

Lawrence Dresser, Santa Ana, took every prize in sight yesterday morning in a model airplane meet at the Eddie Martin airport. He took first in the cabin class race, his time in the air being one minute and 40 seconds. After tying with Tom Engelman, Santa Ana, for first in the free-for-all, Dresser won this event in the run-off, his average time on three flights being 1:29, to 1:17 for Engelman.

In the cabin event Robert Sheere of Riverside was second, his time being 1:13. Elton Barnett of Orange was third, with 1:41. Jerry Robb, Santa Ana, was fourth, at 1:39.

Trophies were presented by Vandermast's, Al's Lock and Key shop and Bob Gerwing's radio store. Flying weather was unsatisfactory, but all entries made consistent flights.

Red Cross Roll Call Progressing In Orange County

In a survey of the field today, Donald Jerome, local Red Cross roll call chairman, reported an encouraging response to the membership drive now under way. While progress in some communities has been a little slow, others like San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano have already met their quotas.

Quotas set by the local committee are: San Clemente, 50; San Juan Capistrano, 50; Costa Mesa, 75; Garden Grove, 125; Huntington Beach, 250; Laguna Beach, 450; Seal Beach, 100; Santa Ana, 2700. This total of 3750, Jerome said, is an increase of 350 over last year.

"Especially enviable is the work of local police officers' wives, captained by Mrs. Floyd Howard," said Jerome. "This group has been very zealous, and has set a new high for local Red Cross activity. Workers are urged to finish their drive prior to Thanksgiving day, that a final tabulation and report may be completed on Friday."

To Push Poppy Project Tomorrow

Plans to turn vacant lots and parkways in Santa Ana into golden fields of poppies will be formulated tomorrow at 10 a. m. at a gathering of civil workers at the city hall.

Mrs. R. G. Tuthill, chairman of the civic affairs committee of the Elbell club, has sent notices of the meeting to service clubs, the city

BURKE, BERRY TO PROTEST INNOCENCE

To Deny Guilt in Case Precipitated During Recent Campaign

J. Frank Burke is scheduled to appear before Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison tomorrow to protest that he knows nothing whatever about the charge which landed him in jail for an hour the day before the general election.

"Colonel" A. B. Berry is scheduled to appear before Justice Morrison at the same time to admit that he knows something about it but to protest that he is entirely innocent of any wrong in connection with the matter.

But Burke and Berry probably won't appear tomorrow. It was reported today plans are under way to continue the case to Dec. 9. Tomorrow also would be a bad day for Supervisor Jerome to appear, inasmuch as the board of supervisors meets tomorrow. Jerome is the complaining witness.

The charge is one sworn to by Supervisor Jerome, recently defeated for re-election, in which he claims that Burke and Berry authorized the insertion of an anonymous political advertisement attacking Jerome, in Berry's Santa Ana Independent.

Burke not only will protest his innocence before Justice Morrison but regardless of the outcome of his preliminary hearing he will carry his fight into the superior court.

There he has launched suit against Jerome for $50,000, charging that he was falsely imprisoned for one hour.

BOYS TO HAVE SERVICES

Boys of the First Methodist Episcopal church will present a Thanksgiving service at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. It was announced today by Dr. George Warner, pastor. Parents and friends are invited. With Ralph Shallenberger as leader, the service will begin with a call to worship given by Bill Hull. Alfred Rivas will read from the scriptures, and Edward Budd will follow with a responsive reading.

A trumpet trio, composed of George Hyde, Milton Asher and Frank Lindgren, and a vocal solo by Sam Campbell will be presented, as well as a trumpet solo by George Hyde.

Joseph Frias will give the thank offering, and Al Pichardt will speak on "Why Be Thankful?" Robert Kelchner will give a reading.

The service will close with hymns and benediction.

RULER TO VISIT ELKS LODGE

Santa Ana Elks lodge No. 794 is preparing for a gala evening tomorrow when Gilbert P. Campbell, district deputy grand exalted ruler of California south, and also a member of the local lodge, will pay his official visit.

At the meeting, which will be followed by a floor show and supper, 19 candidates will be initiated. They are known as the Hallinan class.

Campbell will follow up his visit here with one to the Anaheim lodge on Wednesday, and the local Elks have been invited to attend that meeting also. Campbell's official tour takes up 12 lodges, five of which have already been visited.

San Juan to Pick Farm Delegate

Although San Juan Capistrano has no Farm center, farmers of that community will meet tomorrow noon to exercise their prerogative of electing a director to the Farm bureau board as do the various centers of the county. They will gather at Hotel Capistrano.

When the community several years ago abandoned its Farm center and joined the Tustin center, it retained the right of representation. S. M. Bathgate is the present director. F. D. Plavan is representative on the water committee, Oscar Rosenbaum is representative on the tax committee, and J. Roy Smith is on the citrus committee.

council and other interested groups.

It is planned to scatter poppy seed soon in order that rains will bring the golden flowers in spring.

Peggy Joyce to Wed Again

A wedding next spring is planned between Peggy Hopkins Joyce, already four times a bride, and Vivian Jackson, 30-year-old gentleman jockey, shown with her, she announced at Cranleigh, Eng., as it became known she had been cited as co-respondent in a divorce action brought by the wife of her husband-to-be. DEADLOCK ON AIRPORT TO BE BROKEN

Supervisors Will Decide Tomorrow on Question of Making Lease

Aviator Floyd Wright will know tomorrow whether he has an airport.

Orange county supervisors tomorrow will undertake to decide whether or not they will stand by the lease they made with Wright nearly a month ago for the old county airport, situated just east of Eddie Martin's airport, where Wright now maintains a flying school.

The question of advisability of making the lease came up two weeks ago when Martin, who was in the East at the time the lease was drawn, appeared before the board of supervisors to protest.

Board Misinformed

Martin said he would maintain an airport in its present location regardless of whether Wright was given a lease on the other property, but if the county was going to encourage a new airport, he felt he was entitled to put in a bid.

Members of the board indicated that they had felt Martin had stepped out of the airport company, leaving in its control of Wright. Martin, however, told the supervisors that Wright merely leased the Eddie Martin airport from him and that he intended to retain control.

To Move Airport

Whereupon the board notified Wright that it was considering abrogating his lease and warned him to spend no money on the new location.

Under plans for the extension of South Main street the present Martin airport will be moved and considerable renovation will be undertaken. Two airports, the board feels, would be too much of a good thing. The board has been advised that the lease is revocable.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—George Ade, talkative and cheery, has recovered sufficiently from a heart and lung ailment to sit up and read the newspapers.

marks on the tires of cars, hand out parking tickets, and lie in wait for over-timers.

The issues are as they were—diagonal versus horizontal parking, downtown parking versus leaving the car at home. Other things have come along.

And what happened to the parking meters?

METERS IN MOTH BALLS Parking Battle Has Truce

Hey—what's happened to the parking meters?

Only a few months ago Santa Ana was in armed camps over the prospect of its nickels dropping into little slots for the privilege of parking its cars.

Editorials were written. Arguments were staged. Insults were hurled. Councilman Ernest Layton, championing the machines, made a trip through the Middle West comparing results of installation of parking meters.

Santa Ana, it was freely predicted, was soon to have them.

First it would watch what happened in other cities, then it would act.

For days the pros and cons of parking machines comprised the city's table conversation, and the street corners blossomed with experts, who knew all about what would happen—A, if we had them; B, if we didn't have them.

Catastrophe, all agreed, happened in any event.

Then nothing happened. All is as it was. Policemen make little

Thanksgiving—

Once more we gather around the festive board with joy in our hearts. Once more there are loved ones near. Nancy and John are home from school. William and Mary are home with the new baby. Mother is bustling about the kitchen and there are savory odors from the oven. The big bird is basted, the almonds are buttered and salted and the pies are cooling on the window ledge. It is Thanksgiving in any American home, particularly in Orange county, where there is such an abundance of material things to be thankful for.

But there is more than turkey and cranberries and pie to the Thanksgiving we Americans are privileged to participate in this year. There is still the joy of freedom, the absence of dictators and peace with the world. No individual to tell us we must return to savagery in the interest of conquest or to satisfy greed.

We are one of the few nations in the world to hold our destiny in our own hands. If there is blood to be shed we shall give it freely to protect those rights, but until that day comes we shall continue to thank Almighty God for the peace which is ours today.

Fifty-Fifty Club Inaugurates New President at Gay Week-End House Party

Gathering at Norconian Club

Lawrence Mitchell Is Named Successor to Bus McCoy

Successfully combining formality and informality into one gay week-end, with the Lake Norconian club near Norco as the setting again this year, members of the Fifty-Fifty club held their annual inaugural party Saturday and Sunday at the famous inland resort.

Although events did not officially get underway until the formal dance Saturday evening, many of the 34 couples making up the house party group motored over earlier in the day, and dined at the clubhouse before the dancing started.

The dance was one of the most enjoyable in the history of the club, gay winter formals of the women guests vied with the colors in the flowers used to decorate the ballroom, and excellent music added to the "par excellence" of arrangements for the evening.

Lovely Dresses

Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell and Mrs. Bus McCoy, the very charming wives, respectively, of the incoming and outgoing presidents of the club, were in attractive contrasting formal gowns, the former in black with a metal cloth jacket and Mrs. McCoy in white crepe with gardenias in her hair.

Mrs. Bill Quale wore a lovely brown velvet with a gold tunic, and Mrs. Riley Huber was also in brown, a lace tunic over a velvet skirt. Mrs. Ray Hiniker wore a blue crepe; Mrs. Ewald Lemcke was in an all black dress with matching jacket; and Mrs. E. F. Bruning and Mrs. G. Stanley Norton, two of the new members, were attractive in gold brocade satin and a flower print taffeta, respectively.

Taffeta was also the choice of Mrs. Roy Wolcott, hers in a bright henna shade with a jacket; Mrs. Ross Ingram wore white crepe; Mrs. Don Knapp was in white taffeta with a silver stripe; Mrs. Wayne Harrison wore black velvet; and Mrs. Clyde Hill, jr., one of the club's newest brides, was in duobonnet velvet.

Formality was dispensed with in the Sunday morning breakfast and the hours following, when, rain dispelling thoughts of golf, the guests found pleasure in the club swimming pool and at the bridge tables; and the inaugural dinner at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon likewise adopted the informal keynote of the day.

Some solemnity, however, was attached to the inaugural of the new president, Lawrence Mitchell, who takes the place of the able leader of the year just ending, Bus McCoy. Succeeding Mr. Mitchell in the office of secretary which he has held under Mr. McCoy is Bill Quale, and members of the new board of directors are Clyde Hill, jr., Verlin Anderson, Ralph Culp, Herbert Maland and Buddy Forster.

As an expression of appreciation for his work as president, the club presented Mr. McCoy with a black morocco desk orderly with the crest and his name embossed on it in silver, and members of the retiring presidents made short speeches during the dinner hour, for which the guests assembled at small tables centered with roses from the lovely gardens surrounding the clubhouse. Places of the women were marked with little moire evening purses as favors from the gala week-end.

New Members
Reception of eight new members into the club membership at this time was an added pleasure of the house party, those so honored being Mr. and Mrs. James Tuma of Whittier, John Fleming of Long Beach, and Dr. and Mrs. E. F.

Tea Honors Betrothed Couple

One of the largest and most charming teas of the season was that at which Mr. and Mrs. Terry Stephenson entertained yesterday in their home at 1522 North Broadway, to honor the approaching nuptials of their son, Terry Stephenson, Jr., and Miss Betty Rowland, whose betrothal was announced Saturday at a tea given by the latter's mother, Mrs. Elliott Rowland.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson were the two honored guests and Dr. and Mrs. Rowland; and three nieces of the hostess, the Misses Georgia and Muriel Snyder and Elizabeth Hart, assisted at the door, greeting the one hundred and fifty guests who called during the afternoon.

Mrs. Stephenson was gowned in pink lace and wore a corsage of gardenias and silver leaves. The charming bride-to-be was in a frock of duobonnet taffeta with Talisman roses, also with silver accents; and Mrs. Rowland wore green crepe with Talisman corsage, the flowers all gifts of Miss Rowland's fiancé.

Assisting in hostess duties in the reception room were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rowland, uncle and aunt of the bride-elect, and the two daughters, Mrs. Russell Wilson and Miss Barbara Rowland.

Friends Assist
Others aiding during the afternoon included Mrs. E. T. Rowland, Mrs. John Tessimann, Mrs. E. D. White, Mrs. H. T. Dunning, Mrs. W. H. Spurgeon, Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mrs. Frank Patterson, Mrs. Clarence Crookshank, Mrs. Joseph Metzger, Mrs. Bruce Monroe, Mrs. Lloyd Chenoweth, Mrs. John McCarty, Mrs. George Miles, Mrs. M. B. Wellington, and several Sigma Tau Psi sorority sisters of the honored guest.

Among the guests were Dr. J. P. Boyd and his sister, Miss Rosa Boyd, who have known the bridegroom-to-be all of his life, the latter his godmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers of San Diego, former Santa Anans, were among the out-of-town visitors. Mrs. Rogers arranging the lovely chrysanthemums in the reception room. Mrs. Tessimann presented a bouquet of the same flowers which added to the beauty of the setting during the receiving hours.

White Tea Table
The dining room was in bridal white, the table spread with an Italian cut-work cloth and centered with a long, low arrangement of ragged white themums, snap dragons, and maidenhair fern.

A bouquet on the buffet repeated the same motif, and white tapers in crystal candelabra graced both buffet and table. Tea service was in silver, and appointments included lovely Belek and Spode china pieces.

Small bride cakes and ices, with coffee and tea, were served with guests being invited in small groups to the dining room.

Many delightful affairs are planned in the weeks before the wedding, which has been set for December 26 in the Episcopal Church of the Messiah, both bride and bridegroom-elect having a wide circle of friends in Santa Ana.

The guests found at their places packets of jasmine tea, gifts from Mrs. Wolfe to whom the club presented with a luncheon set as a parting gift.

Mrs. Wolfe was also the subject for the poems and sketches read during the afternoon, and she selected as the theme a quotation from Browning's "Pippa Passes":

"For am I not, this day, What'er I please? What shall I please, today? My morn, noon, eve and night—how spend my day?"

She opened the program with a short resume of Browning's life and works. Mrs. Emily Muny read an original piece, "This Day Is Thine"; Mrs. Earl Morris, "What I please; Mrs. Harriett Birtcher, "Try Again" and "A Toast to the Hostess."

Wedding Is Solemnized Sunday

Medieval in effect was the lovely wedding Sunday evening at 8 o'clock when Miss Frances Rosalie Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Edmund Smith of Orange, became the bride of Arthur Gustave Lemke, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Lemke, Santa Ana canyon, in the Trinity Episcopal church, Orange.

The bride was gowned in white lace over satin, with court train; her veil of fine net and lace, and carried gardenias and bovardia. Maid and matron of honor and bridesmaids all wore period gowns of taffeta, with slight trains and Juliet caps of sequins and jewels. The bride's sister and maid of honor, Miss Elaine Smith, wore gold and carried Talisman roses; Mrs. Robert E. Paulus, Olive, matron of honor, autumn leaf brown; Miss Lois Rees, Anaheim, rust, exchanged vows in the little chapel of St. Mary's Episcopal church at Laguna Beach.

Betrothal of the couple was told several weeks ago at a pretty announcement party, and the wedding announced for "some time in December." Wishing a quiet wedding, however, the young couple chose an earlier date and are announcing the marriage today after a week-end honeymoon at Hotel El Mirado at Rancho Santa Fe.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a black suit with kid caracul trim and black accessories. Her corsage was of orchids.

The Rev. Mr. R. M. Hogarth, rector of the church, read the impressive service, following which the couple left for their trip.

Present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Baker and their daughter, JoAnn, and Mr. and Mrs. Guard and daughter, Margaret.

The bride and bridegroom were back in Santa Ana today, and are living in East Eighth street. Mrs. Guard is continuing her duties with William and Lord stock and bond offices and Mr. Guard, who is a graduate of Stanford university, is a pharmacist in his father's drug company.

The bride is a graduate of Santa Ana High school and Junior college, and is a popular member of Sigma Theta sorority. She has lived here for about four years.

The couple left later for a trip, the bride wearing a wool suit of duobonnet, with matching accessories. They will make their home in Olive in a newly purchased house on Orange street. The bride is a graduate of Orange High school and Santa Ana Junior college and is a talented musician.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Orange High school, is a rancher and the son of one of the county's pioneer families.

Mary Stoddard Character Building, Like Charity Must Begin in the Home

By MARY STODDARD

Every now and then the subject of child training comes up in this column and one of the finest letters written on this subject is one which has just come in for publication, in the hope that it will show mothers and fathers the responsibilities that lie with them. The letter follows:

Dear Miss Stoddard: I once heard a very fine Episcopal minister state from his pulpit, in answer to some mothers of the church, who had asked him to do something with their wayward sons, that he would gladly do all within his power to help, but that the real training and discipline had to be done at home.

If the carpenter is given poor lumber with which to build his house, it will always be just that much of a handicap to him in his work. Flaws in construction of any work, will always remain flaws, though glossed over with fancy trimming.

Character building starts from the cradle. Whatever example you are to your impressionable child, in your daily life together, he will reflect in his growth.

It takes years of time, patience, and all the love one can command, to build a character who will be a worthy future citizen, and a possible leader of men and women. Comparatively few mothers and fathers are willing to sacrifice themselves to the cause, yet become the fact that their sons and daughters are treading the path that destroys natural growth and leads to ruin.

Children must be kept busy. Their young minds are ever groping for new ideas, reaching up and out like plants for those necessary mind and body building materials. Our work is to supply the kind that will build from within.

If we ourselves lack the essential qualities and expect our children to gain them by contact with outside influence, then chance takes the helm and the result, as a rule, is many handed young souls grasping a desired nick in the world by fair means or foul.

We can't teach our children something we are not willing to learn for ourselves. There is more to life than a mad scramble in pursuit of thrilling amusement. Our young folks don't know how to reflect or meditate. Nature's beauty leaves them cold. When bare, they jump off a bridge, or all thrills have been worn threadbare they rob a bank and kill. They lack depth, stability.

The growth of a flower is a beautiful sight, yet after its season it fades and withers, but the child encompasses all seasons, and the development of its mind is a wonderful event of beauty or ugliness as interesting as any care to make it so. Commit your failure on others, for it's your job. Sincerely, SALLY C.

Luncheon Has Setting In Laguna

Three Santa Ana friends, Mrs. A. W. Rutan, Mrs. H. T. Duckett and Mrs. R. G. Tutill, joined in hostess duties Saturday afternoon when they entertained at a charmingly arranged bridge luncheon in the Hotel Laguna.

The hostesses received in the lounge after the guests had been greeted at the door of the lobby by the Mesdames Mary Tutill and Harriet Rutan and Mesdames A. G. Flagg and George Briggs.

Mrs. Duckett received in a formal afternoon dress of petunia velvet with touches of silver, while Mrs. Rutan and Mrs. Tutill wore gowns, respectively, of black velvet with lace collar and a figured blue chiffon. Mrs. Tutill had a corsage of gardenias from her own garden.

Miss Rutan was lovely in a blue velvet tunic suit with large velvet hat and Miss Tutill in black velvet with coral sash and neck outlined in silver.

After all had assembled, the hostesses led the way to the luncheon tables in the dining room, where 75 were seated at three long tables. Down the length of each were garlands of shining green leaves and little mounds of persimmons, the color of the latter repeated in the place cards.

After the delicious four-course luncheon, with the menu centering around turkey, the guests returned to the lounge, where the marine views from the windows and the beautiful flower paintings on the walls leave little need for additional decoration. One very large blue pottery bowl filled with single asters in orchid, pink and white shades occupied a central position.

Eighteen tables were arranged for contract, the players progressing in three groups of six tables each. Two prizes were presented in each group, attractively wrapped in cellophane and tied with the ribbons in the autumn colors.

First awards, chosen according to scores after the games were over, went to Mrs. Roy Hall, high, who received a large crystal tray; Mrs. J. S. Smart, a white pottery flower bowl; Mrs. Sarah Johnston Haddon, a hammered silver tray.

Second prizes went to Mrs. A. Connor of Anaheim, a lovely white bowl; Mrs. Adam Zaiser, a crystal and silver vase; and Mrs. I. F. Landis, a hammered silver basket.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

WELL, here it is Monday, three days after Verne Beck brings out his weekly offering in the Coastline Dispatch at San Juan Capistrano. And, as usual, I'm swiping his "Sermons for Children" again. I asked Editor Beck if my "lifting" operations were OK the other night, and he put the official seal of editorial approval on 'em, so her goes!

First, I'm swiping the sister of the "belching, burping, quadded" described in last week's "Ode to a Cow." This week the Capistrano bard odes thusly:

ODE TO A GOAT
Oh, Goat,
Obese, obnoxious, whisker-wagging beast,
Stumpy tail a-waving, contented at your feast
Of cans and junk and underwear;
The only thing without a care—
Oh, Goat.

O, Goat,
Odorous, onerous, opinionated thing,
Always sad unless you're butting in;
Alone you live with flea and fly,
One whiff will tell the reason why—
Oh, Goat, Oh, Goat,
Oh, Goat!

Following those pungent paragraphs, we'll let Editor Beck remain at the helm with his, this time, more or less profane advice to young readers. Here she is:

Little children, you should always act nice, even at home and in school, and even if company isn't present, because if you don't something will happen sometime to prove that you are not honorable to upright citizens, and unworthy of running for political office. You might not spill the beans yourself, but some of your associates will, and then you'll face the red. It's like this, little children, once upon a time there lived a nice lady who had never become involved with matrimony, and was what is known as an unmarried treasure, or old maid. The only company she had in the house was a parrot, and every Sunday she would drape a very thick black cloth over the cage because people came to call on Sunday, and with the black cloth over the cage the parrot thought it was night all day and wouldn't talk a word. Some days when the parrot and the old maid were home alone he would repeat some of the strong language used by the unmarried treasure, and this would embarrass her, and show up her other self. You see, children, we all have two sides, our company sides, and our private life sides. Our private sides at times are not so good. One Wednesday afternoon the old maid was sitting with her parrot knitting a layette for a friend, when lo, and behold, she saw the preacher coming up on the porch. She ran to the door to let him in, because she was glad to see anything of the opposite sex, even if it was the minister. It furnished her with a thrill. But just as the minister was coming into the living room where the parrot was in the cage she thought of the bird and the words he might use, so she threw the thick black cloth over the cage, and smiled beautifully at the preacher. Suddenly they were startled at the words from the cage. They heard the mean old parrot squawk very loud and angry indeed, "say, hasn't this been a hell of a short week?" My, can you imagine how put out the old maid was, and how astonished the preacher was, because he never heard such words, and he thought the unmarried treasure was untainted. Those few words, spoken by an insignificant old parrot, at once put the minister's suspicious list, and he left right away, because he didn't want to become compromised, or involved, and he never went back to her house, and at church he slyly prayed for her soul, and she became so mortified she wrung the parrot's neck and had chicken stew and moved into a country that was too cold for parrots, and there she lived all alone until she ossified from complications of old age. So children, if you don't want to have preachers praying for your soul, never speak or think things that have to be covered up with a big black cloth because someday somebody might swipe your cloth, and then what in the world would you do?

Y.M.C.A. HEAD FORUM GUEST

Charles Tidball, National Y. M. C. executive who is visiting in the home of the Rev. Robert McCauley, pastor of the Orange Presbyterian church, addressed 35 members of the young people's forum in the home of Don Smiley, on East Chapman avenue, last night.

Tidball, who has spent years in Europe studying the political situation, discussed the question, "Is World War Inevitable?" and lauded the League of Nations for keeping the world informed as to the dangers of war. The United States might have been involved in the Spanish conflict today if it had not been for the League, Tidball said. He compared the European governments, and also discussed Hitler and Mussolini.

Self-Stranded Workers Eat

Between 500 and 1,100 workers remained within the Bendix Products Corporation plant at South Bend, Ind., in defiance of the company's shutdown order in labor troubles affecting 4,800 employees. Here are some of the self-stranded workers getting food and drink from wives and fellow workers through one of the windows in the extensive shops. The United Automobile Workers demanded 100 per cent unionization of the plant. (Associated Press Photo)

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Left-handed matches looked the only way out of it today when Harry Welch, secretary of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, returned to his desk from his San Francisco session with the state chamber of commerce convention.

Women, it seems, open the fifty three-color job Newport-Balboa advertising match folders turned out by the Chamber of Commerce so light her own cigarette," he protracted the map of the harbor printed inside the covers appears upside down.

That, of course, would never do. Something had to be done.

Special packets of left-handed matches were proposed, and in the crisis perhaps have been ordered there and then, if the harassed secretary, with a thought for his budget, had not been inspired to cry out:

"Any man that allows a lady to light her own cigarette," he pronounced, "is no gentleman."

125 Attend 'Hobby Night' At Oceanview School

OCEANVIEW.—"Hobby Night," staged by members of the Oceanview P.T. A. following a covered dish supper Friday evening, was observed by 125 parents and children with many interesting hobbies on display in one of the classrooms.

Outstanding was the exhibit of art photography, work of Genevieve White, fifth grade teacher. Other collections featured were exhibits of articles made by natives of Somalia, recently brought to this country by Hal Enos, returned missionary. Campaign buttons and badges dating back to the time of Lincoln and a collection of modern brochures were shown by Helen Murray.

An array of vanity boxes and compacts was displayed by Florence Murray. Many different models of toy boats were the property of Jimmie Marshall. Mrs. Joseph Tucker brought her collection of Bibles, and a display of shells also was a feature.

During a program presented in the auditorium, John R. Peterson, superintendent of the school, gave a talk on "Turtles" and Martin Murray, whose hobby is "stargazing," gave a blackboard talk on astronomy. Preceding the program the president, Mrs. P. H. Marshall, conducted a short business meeting and Mrs. Tucker read a devotional poem.

"You knew about that?" "It's my business to know about everything that goes on aboard this tub." "Tub?" He flashed a swift grin at her over his shoulder. "Why didn't you go?" he demanded. "Then you wanted to be rid of me?"

"I wanted you to have an opportunity to go," he told her slowly.

Janet found that she was content to stand there quietly behind him. She was fiercely glad she had cast the rope off.

"When will we reach Cuba?" she asked suddenly.

"Sometime after midnight if this boat is as fast of Captain Coleman claimed."

"Captain Coleman?" "Sure. Oh, don't get me wrong," Dusty said quickly. "He's not in on this deal. I swung it alone. But the captain likes to boast and I made a point of cultivating him rather assiduously while I was planning to snatch your floating plaything."

"Assiduously," Janet murmured. "You've got a small vocabulary for a pirate."

"I haven't always been a pirate," Dusty grunted. "I went to school once . . . just like anyone else." His voice was tinged with bitterness.

Janet was silent a moment. She didn't want him to think she was prying into his past.

"You plan to unload your . . . cargo . . . tonight?" she asked in a low tone.

"Yes. If we don't meet any curious Coast Guard cutters on the way over," Dusty said cheerfully. "And afterward?" she persisted. "I'll see that you're taken care of," he assured her grimly.

"I don't know that I want to be taken care of," she said in a small voice. "I could have attended to that myself a short while ago. If I'd wanted to desert the ship."

He shot a direct glance back at her, then turned to nurse the wheel tenderly.

"Almost clear of the Keys," he muttered. "We'll soon have a straight course and full speed ahead. I don't blame you for refusing to desert this ship," he mused. "She's the sweetest thing I ever handled."

"Stolen sweets," Janet said mockingly. He flinched at that. "I never

BEACH SEWER BIDS TO BE SOUGHT

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Averaging bids for the $350,000 new and improved Newport Harbor district sewer system will begin this week, it was expected today. R. L. Harrington, city engineer, and his secretarial staff have been burning the midnight oil in the city hall to complete the necessary paper work at the earliest possible moment.

PWA approval and appropriations for the project have been assured, it was understood, to enable actual construction to begin with the least delay.

Rapid development of the Newport Harbor district with ground being broken for at least one new house almost every working day, has made the new sewer system a need of utmost importance, authorities said.

"The city has far outgrown the present system," they declared.

ORANGE UNION RITES HELD

ORANGE.—The second union meeting under the auspices of the Preaching Mission was held Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church, with Dr. J. Hamilton Lash, pastor of the Hollywood Congregational church, as speaker.

Dr. Robert B. McAulay, pastor of the church, presided. A united choir, from all churches taking part, furnished music. A trio composed of Mrs. Leon Les Larze, Mrs. Walter Kogler, and Mrs. Arch D. Burkett also sang. Mrs. Leon Les Larze sang a solo, "The Fool Hath Said in His Heart There Is No God." The choir was led by Mrs. George B. Harper of the Methodist church, with Percy Green at the organ.

VISITS NIECE
COSTA MESA.—J. E. Lewton of Forest Grove, Ore., is visiting this week at the home of his niece, Mrs. E. L. Clark, 2427 Orange avenue.

Of Jimmie Marshall. Mrs. Joseph Tucker brought her collection of Bibles, and a display of shells also was a feature.

During a program presented in the auditorium, John R. Peterson, superintendent of the school, gave a talk on "Turtles" and Martin Murray, whose hobby is "stargazing," gave a blackboard talk on astronomy. Preceding the program the president, Mrs. P. H. Marshall, conducted a short business meeting and Mrs. Tucker read a devotional poem.

HOSTAGES By DAVIS DRESSER

Dusty Lanion, adventurer, needing a boat to carry arms and ammunition to revolutionists in Cuba, seizes a yacht anchored off Miami. When he discovers that the owner's daughter, Janet Duane, is aboard, he decides that the only course is to take her along. The yacht puts in at a lonely Florida cove to pick up the contraband cargo. There, Sakara Fitzoff, Russian adventurer, and Don Martinez, Cuban revolutionist, come aboard. As the yacht is leaving the cove, Janet's negro maid, Fandella, persuades her to try to escape in a rowboat tied to the yacht.

CHAPTER IX
Janet's heart was pounding wildly as Fandella disappeared over the side of the yacht. Something drew her gaze to the wheelhouse. All was darkness there except for the dim glow of the binnacle light, which was reflected upward to outline the features of the man at the wheel. A stern face. Strong. Frowning now, with fierce concentration. It was a treacherous business, gilding the boat through the shoals in the darkness.

A queer emotion clutched at Janet's heart as she stared at Dusty's rugged face. A hoarse whisper floated up to her as she hesitated. Her hand, on the rope which Fandella had said secured the rowboat, felt a tug.

Then—resolution came to her. She knew, in that moment, that she could not go back to the place where she had known. Her stifled life was here on the swaying deck, with Dusty Lanion at the wheel!

Savage exultation surged through her as her fingers jerked at the knot securing the rowboat. She cast the rope off with a wild gesture of freedom, and leaped far over the side to call softly:

"Row back alone, Fandella. I can't leave the Fleetwing! I have to see it through!"

She smiled faintly as Fandella's astonished protestations floated up to her over the widening gulf of water.

She walked swiftly to the wheelhouse and stopped behind Dusty. "I've just said goodbye to my maid," she told him placidly.

His shoulders moved, ever so slightly. He gave no other evidence of surprise.

"Why didn't you go ashore with her?" "Did you want me to go?" she challenged.

"Why else do you think I allowed that clumsy truck driver to tie a boat next to the Jacob's ladder?"

"steal," he told her angrily. "Borrowed, is the word. She wasn't doing anybody any good anchored in Biscayne Bay."

"Is she doing good now? Carrying arms and ammunition to foment a rebellion?" "Who can say?" he asked somberly. "They enjoy fighting, those Cubans. It's their destiny to follow lost causes."

There was a polite cough behind them. Janet and Dusty turned to see Don Martinez standing apologetically in the doorway.

"A thousand pardons," he bowed from the waist. "I am sorry to interrupt, but I must beg a word with you, Captain Dusty."

"Don Martinez," Dusty muttered, "Miss Duane."

"I am delighted," The tall Cuban bowed again.

"What do you want to see me about?" Dusty asked brusquely. "Ah, yes. It is this man Snifter. I do not like his eyes. Eh? He is a bad one, is it not?"

"Pretty mean if he gets coked up," Dusty said carelessly. "Coked up?" Don Martinez wrinkled his brow in perplexity.

"Sure. Cocaine. Dope." "Ah," Don Martinez looked apprehensive. "I am afraid he is, as you say, coked up. He appeared like a wild man when I saw him just now. I think he is dangerous. He was hurrying from the cabins aft, and he cursed me as he pushed me aside."

Dusty stiffened. "If that rat is on the rampage, there's no telling what hell he'll do," he muttered. "Here," He stepped away from the wheel. "We're in the clear now. That's the course." He indicated the compass. "Can you hold her on while I hunt up Snifter and see what he's up to?"

"But, of course." Don Martinez took the wheel, and Dusty hurried onto the deck.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: I was noticing the clean pen lines of Dorman Smith's cartoons. I wondered, as he worked many years in Ohio, if he might be influenced by Billy Ireland. Just as Webster, Ding and Briggs were influenced by McCutcheon.

M. resurrected a teentype of us today. Taken in front of a cannon in the public square after a trolley ride. Shoes date an era. Mine were bulldog toed with big brass eyelets. She was in spring heels. To have made it perfect I should have been carrying a buggy whip.

Loyalty strikes me as one of the supreme virtues. I've often winced at the thoughtless who used to howl for the Stones to scrap their Montgomerys and the Clarks their McCulloughs. Still, when I tried to hammer it into a magazine piece I was stumped after two paragraphs.

One wonders how many others are out of step with the feverishly fast sophisticated plays now the vogue. Whipping back and forth lightning-clever lines that could be thought up only in an hour or so. Even by a Mizner or Coward. They take away much of the stage's naturalness.

Sophistication surfeits many, I fear. Ahead of me at a Gilbert and Sullivan play the other night was one of those "aunts from Portland, Maine." Delightfully simple in dress and old-fashioned coiffure and with a little fan of the '80's. I told my cynical companion I hoped she always remained just like that. He hoped so, too, but added a dubious: "One never knows; she may bust out in a rhumba any day."

Bud Kelland, to my eye, has one of the most interesting faces among the authors. He suggests one of those eager young Irishmen, just over, beaming from behind the counter of a chain grocery. One hundred per cent city he has never lost what is known as the "hayfield squint"—a naive curiosity about people, stuff and things. All this plus being the swiftest man on his banquet feet in a town of notable orators. Will Hays is another who retains the country town look. And few look more the gaunt-mouthed country boy than Cole Porter.

There was a pleasantly named Arkansas town in the news lately. Evening Shade. One of the lingering, dilettante phrases in my memory is "When evening shadows fall." From an old canto. I had visions of the sneezehouse story quartet. I could sneak over a dirty jet of train in the uptake of the word "sha-ad-ows!" And was just beginning to flourish as a tenor when my voice went all of a sudden. It troubled me more than I would admit. I had visions of a spot in a minstrel olio quartet—to travel, see the world and, topping all, march in strange towns in a purple satin coat and a white plush plug hat. Psychologists would likely dub the parade marching complex an inferiority. A peasant with an urge to be admired!

It must have perked the true Kansan to see the Long Island fashionables making the sunflower the go-in table decorations, dress patterns and the small-sized versions in their hair. The sunflower was a boon to the pre-lan-don cartoonist, too. How easily he could turn it into a gorgeous sunrise—the old Dawn of a New Era theme and all that. The sunflower was becoming the real forgotten flower until this sudden renaissance. I'm suspicious of people who show a copy of The Atlantic Monthly too much. I suspect a True Confessions hidden inside. And those who carry the ever ready cane-like "seats" to the polo matches and golf shoots. Bon-tons or just commoners putting on the lug?

On a day that the column was arduous, Fred Knowles would pass along an offer of $7,000 a week for a 10-minute radio talk. Some day one of those radio birds is going to catch me in a true Scotch mood and I'll snap him up and make him feel pretty squirrely. All the Rabelaisian sonnets these days concern Edward and Mrs. Wally. Someone tells me that even the greatest poets like to indulge ribaldry on the sly.

M. and I prinked up last evening and got to a dinner a little ahead of schedule. Nothing puts a husband on the spot like such a slip. So I atoned at once. With a spread at her favorite restaurant. And there was a chess there in her cups and hiccup. Fun among the upper claws-es, no end!

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON. — Preparations for the President's take-off to Buenos Aires were made with infinite care. Union station was thoroughly policed. All the track between Washington and Charleston was inspected and patrolled.

The President's baggage was carefully packed so that he would have morning dress for his speech in Buenos Aires, evening dress for his banquets with presidents of Brazil and Argentina.

In his portfolio were packed treaties and proposals to be made at the Pan-American conference, reports from various cabinet officers, detailed studies of projects to be taken up when congress opens.

No item was overlooked to provide for the President's work and comfort on the long trip. But when he got to the station the train did not pull out.

Roosevelt got aboard, waved his hand, smiled good-bye from the rear platform. But nothing happened. Almost 20 minutes passed and the train did not move.

Reason: The President's aides had overlooked the one thing indispensable when he travels, his wheel-chair.

So the train waited while a station wagon chased to the White house and back, stowed the chair safely in the baggage car.

PRESIDENTIAL READING

Here is the way the books were selected for the President's reading on the South American trip.

Chief Yeoman Charles K. Claunch of the navy got two book lists. One was a list of current best sellers, the other a list of all recent detective stories. Yeoman Claunch made a careful selection of the best sellers, but made no selection of the detective stories. He ordered them all.

"The President is very fond of detective stories," explained Claunch, "and you have to get all the latest ones to be sure to have something he hasn't read."

Total number of books ordered was 100.

Note: Indicative of what may be in store regarding a constitutional amendment and the supreme court was the fact that the President took with him two books on the court, "The Nine Old Men," and the advance manuscript of a book by Morris Ernst, "The Ultimate Power."

NEW YORK. — The steamer Prinz Joze, which left Saturday for Kingston, Jamaica, is ashore on the rocks off Samana island north of Hayti. William Jennings Bryan, wife and grandchild, with a party of 85 tourists, are aboard.

The early Pacific Electric car bound for Newport Beach collided this morning with a wagon loaded with wood on a curve just north of the sugar factory, the collision resulting in the wreck of the wagon and some damage to the front end of the car. There were no horses attached to the wagon at the time of the collision.

Here is one who is hoping that The Journal will, before it is too late, put away childish things, become an intelligent adult and dominate the Orange county field.

DALE E. WINTERBOURNE, 303 Spurgeon Street, P. S.—I glanced over a copy of The Journal tonight. I was anxious to discover if the editor was aware that an election of considerable import to people of Orange county had taken place, and if the editor had, perchance, sensed in such an election a growing importance on the part of the people with reactionary politicians who have for so many years fattened at public expense. I attempted to disclose evidence that The Journal possessed backbone enough to take a stand with the average producing citizen to check the petty grafting and small-town racketeering by its public servants.

I found one column that did not seem to be tainted with some sort of propaganda or other. It was "The Washington Merry-Go-Round," and the editor didn't write it. It alone almost worth the price of a subscription—almost!

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

Writing this column Saturday, it is not possible to make an accurate estimate of the week-end casualties, but it is a safe prediction the slaughter will continue because drivers take chances and innocent people are killed. Isn't it strange that most of the accidents occur on account of drivers thinking they only have just so much time to get to their destination, when the fact is that most of them have little but time, and they don't know how to use that. So merrily we roll along until someone gets in our way, and then both machines start rolling, but not for any great distance.

Turkeys are cheaper. They'll have to be if I get one.

Saturday is becoming known as refrigeration day. It is the day when the housewife does the shopping and then goes home and packs the refrigerator with the week's stock which is supposed to last until the following Saturday. Food is cheaper, the claim is made, and the saving meets the payments on the machine. I'm trying to find that out, and it's going to take me 26 more weeks to do it.

Guess those hats with the upward tendency where one kind of material is piled on another are all right, but they make me think of a Christmas tree, only the color isn't green. If you don't like the high-hat, you can wear one of them that goes round and round, like Pearson and Allen's Washington column. Anyway, I should worry. I don't have to wear 'em.

Paul Armstrong, of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, came home from an Eastern trip to tell us that the price of valencias is better, and we "ain't got any."

So that he who rides may read, Sergeant Hershey of the motorcycle squad has placed at Fifth and Main streets a stationary stop warning which requires the motorists to come to a halt when pedestrians are in crosswalk. The sign will remain day and night, and is equipped with red buttons for night visibility, and should relieve the pedestrian's perplexity, which has been considerable at this particular intersection.

Damage inflicted by the recent wind appears to be spotted. In some sections the electricity under the foliage on the east part of the orange trees, other sections of the orange trees, which were whipped by the elements. Taking into account the length and severity of the storm, the damage does not appear to be so extensive as one would naturally conclude. But any retardation to tree and fruit delays production not for the moment, but extends over into the following season. Therefore hot winds are always viewed with alarm.

Notice picture of an automobile crushed between freight cars in the Los Angeles railroad yards. It was a '36 model, but it didn't look that way.

Sam Meyer, publisher of the Newport Beach News, waits until after the windstorm, then comes to Santa Ana and runs into a flock of newspaper men. Well, it is all right with me if he wants to change the current, but with his experience, I should think he would prefer just the ordinary elements, minus any contribution from the Fourth Estate.

One day last week, out of 14 arrests, nine were for speeding, which is another way of saying that nine drivers were supplying the danger for other pedestrians and motorists. Why they do so they can't answer themselves. Maybe someone told them their car would make 90 miles an hour, and they didn't believe the story. So the police had to furnish the convincing evidence.

And, says Dick Sneddon, "It's a grand thing for America that most of its musicians go abroad to study."

Someone has accused the Pilgrims of making tame turkeys wild. There's something to it. Why, as recent as 1888 there were so many sageshens in the Wyoming and Utah section you could kick 'em with your foot. Try and get near one today. Not many of them left, but the survivors have learned the lesson of familiarity, which in their case also breeds contempt, any they shy at man. When the Union Pacific was different than it is today I used to get into the western Wyoming area for sagehen hunting. They are a reticent bird today. You can get 'em, but you must be clever to do so. Thanksgiving coming along made me think of it.

Modern Monroe Doctrine

A MODERN interpretation of the Monroe doctrine may result from President Roosevelt's important trip to South America. For it is probable that the inter-American conference at Buenos Aires will be largely concerned with keeping American nations out of the next world war.

Certainly the time is ripe for such an agreement between the countries of North and South America.

By deeds no less than words, President Roosevelt has proved the sincerity of this country's desire to live up to its announced policy of the good neighbor. Old fears and suspicions are fading.

Thus, in taking the initiative for the Buenos Aires conference, the President was justified in saying: "I cherish the sincere conviction that the moment has now arrived when the American republics . . . can give renewed hope and courage to the war-weary peoples of the world by demonstrating to them that the source of armed conflict can and will be eliminated from the western hemisphere."

Perhaps the conference will develop something like a league of American nations.

With collapse of security in Europe, we people of the New World must stand together more solidly than ever for the preservation of peace in our domains.

Civilians in Madrid have been killed by the hundreds. Wars may make the world safe for other things, but never for people.

The Right Way

THE province of British Columbia is adopting the United States plan for taking care of the jobless.

Last year the relief question was a football in Canada. The provinces kicked it to the central government, and the government kicked it right back.

As a result, Vancouver, the key city of the province, paid the piper. All during the winter there was trouble, climaxed by a riot.

British Columbia learned from that lesson that hungry men are desperate men.

This year a modified New Deal is being tried out in Canada. Several thousand young men are being sent into the woods and to the placer mines, given a chance to earn a living.

Others are being sent to the farms, under government subsidy.

British Columbia has found out what America has learned, and recently approved in Roosevelt's overwhelming re-election—the way to conduct an orderly government is to provide work for the jobless.

People Will Save $10,000

ONE of the first things the legislature will be asked to do when it meets in January is to kick out Judge Gavin Craig, the justice who is drawing a salary of $10,000 a year from the state—although he is serving a jail term for conspiring to defeat justice in the Italo Petroleum case.

Assemblyman Charles Hunt, Los Angeles, has promised to take steps necessary to impeach Craig.

The California supreme court recently ruled that Craig was entitled to his pay of $10,000 although in prison, because legal steps had not been taken to cut off the flow of cash.

Thanks, Assemblyman Hunt, for proposing to rectify this amazing blunder on the part of the law or the supreme court. You'll save us $10,000.

Hollywood press agents must feel faded by all this pre-coronation publicity for the king and Mrs. Simpson.

Those Cursing Children

THE other day a sweet little grammar school girl in our neighborhood stubbed her toe. Immediately she dropped her sweetness and released a volley of adjectives that would shock a tough.

Perhaps that is being modern. One can even imagine doting parents who might be proud of such an effective vocabulary.

But the child's language sounded vulgar to us. We cannot prevent a child from hearing such language. It is our duty, however, to teach children—especially little girls—to behave in a more restrained manner.

Our prescription for the cursing child who stubbed her toe, were she ours, would be a vigorous massage—applied externally with a hairbrush.

Why is it that travel broadens a man and sitting around broadens a woman?

It's a Life Saver

OUR BLESSINGS on the city council and police department for putting a pedestrian crossing sign at Fifth and Main streets. It may save a life some day.

Now they can complete a good job by placing a similar sign at Third and Main street.

Here's hoping the officials responsible for this good deed get a double helping of white meat on Thanksgiving day!

Now, let all the sore-heads join in an whoop it up for complete recovery.
